

Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program Surveys

The following surveys are templates that schools can use to evaluate their Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program (FFVP). The survey results can be used to improve program operations, learn how the FFVP has influenced students, and to inform decision makers about the impact the FFVP has on your school. There are four templates you may wish to use:

- Student survey
- Teacher survey
- Parent survey
- Food service staff survey

Tips:

- Use your judgment on the grade levels that are able to complete the survey and make adjustments for younger students as necessary.
- Common times to conduct surveys are mid-year or at the end of the year.
- Parent surveys could be conducted at conferences or another time when parents are gathered at the school.
- Avoid scheduling surveys during standardized testing or when students have a different schedule than normal.
- Seek approval for data collection at the school and send instructions with the surveys (due date, how they should be completed, where to return the completed surveys, etc.).
